

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

How do I start my job search?

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe jobs and careers in both work and social contexts appropriate for the interlocutor.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about events and experiences related to a job.
- I can ask for confirmation.
- I can explain tips about a job search.

Ask your partner:

- What kind of social media sites do you use?
- Do you worry about your personal information being posted on social media? Why or why not?

Let's Explore!

Kristi runs into Bianca at the job fair.

* "Run into" is a phrasal verb that means to meet someone by chance.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Kristi: Hey Bianca! What are you doing here?
- Bianca: I thought I'd come to give you a little moral support. Also, it can't hurt for me to see what types of jobs are out there, can it?
- Kristi: Well, I'm glad you're here. Someone gave me a list of job search tips which I'm not sure I completely understand. I don't have to do all of them, do I?
- Bianca: I don't know. Let's check them out.
- Kristi: The first tip that is listed is "Don't be a copycat candidate." That means to be different. I shouldn't do what everyone else does, should I?
- Bianca: No. You want to stand out. It says "Take into consideration your personal experiences and career goals, which can be used to position yourself as a unique candidate."
- Kristi: It also says to make a good first impression, especially on social media. Employers who can see what we post on Twitter and Facebook might get a bad impression. We don't want them to see something embarrassing, do we?
- Bianca: No way! I like this one: "Network with your peers." People who rely too much on searching on the Internet are missing opportunities. All the jobs I've gotten have been because someone recommended me. It's so important to let all your peers know that you are looking for work, and what type of work you want.
- Kristi: You're right. We can't underestimate peers who are a source of career opportunities. This is a great one too: "Be realistic: make sure you have both the skills and the commitment to be successful."
- Bianca: Wise advice. Okay, let's eat. You're not going to skip lunch, are you?

Let's Practice!

What are tips that Kristi and Bianca read about?

Instructions: Match the two parts of the sentences from Column A to Column B

Column A

- 1) Someone gave me list of job search tips
- 2) Take into consideration your personal experiences and career goals,
- 3) Employers
- 4) People
- 5) We can't underestimate peers

Column B

- a) who rely too much on searching on the internet are missing opportunities.
- b) which can be used to position yourself as a unique candidate.
- c) who are a source of career opportunities.
- d) which I'm not sure I completely understand.
- e) who can see what we post on Social networks might get a bad impression.

Let's Practice!

Do you agree with the advice that Kristi read about?

Instructions: Organize the mystery sentence. Read the sentences aloud. Compare your pronunciation with a partner. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1) "Take / personal / it / experience". / consideration / your / says, / into

2) ? / do / we / don't / embarrassing, / see / to / something / We / them / want

3) on / much / the / missing / too / are / rely / on / internet / who / searching / opportunities. / People

Extension Activity

Make a pamphlet of job search tips.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Imagine that you are a career counselor.
- Brainstorm tips for people who are looking for a job.
- Write a list of tips with brief explanations of how to follow the tip.
- Put your tips in a pamphlet (folded piece of paper that you can give to people).
- Exchange your pamphlet with another student.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I talk about events and experiences related to a job.

☐ ☐

I brainstorm job search tips.

☐ ☐

I make a list of job search tips.

☐ ☐

I create a pamphlet of job search tips that I can give to people.

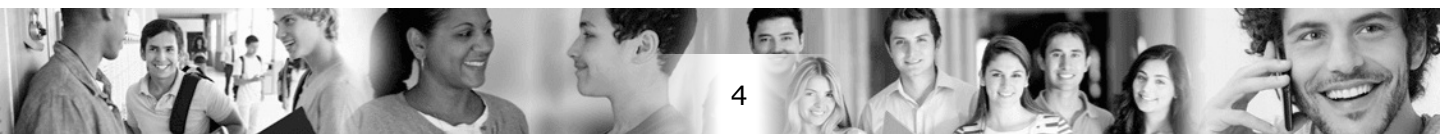

☐ ☐

I exchange my pamphlet with another student.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- copycat (noun): a person who imitates the behavior of others
e.g. The first tip that is listed is "Don't be a copycat candidate."
- to stand out (verb): to be noticeable and different from the rest e.g. You want to stand out.
- to position (verb): to put something in a specific place
e.g. Career goals can be used to position yourself as a unique candidate.
- to take into consideration (expression): to think about or consider e.g. It says "Take into consideration your personal experience."
- embarrassing (adjective): making one feel ashamed or shy
e.g. We don't want them to see something embarrassing, do we?
- to rely on (verb): to need a particular thing or the help and support of someone or something in order to succeed e.g. People who rely too much on searching on the internet are missing opportunities.
- peer (noun): a person who is the same age or has the same social position or the same abilities as other people in a group e.g. We can't underestimate peers who are a source of career opportunities.
- commitment (noun): a willingness to give your time and energy to something that you believe in Example: "Make sure you have both the skills and the commitment to be successful."
- to underestimate (verb): to fail to understand how strong, skilful, intelligent, or determined someone, especially a competitor, is e.g. Don't underestimate the contribution that your peers can make to your job search.

Learning Points

Subject and Object Relative Clauses

When you want to clarify which person or thing you are talking about, you use a relative clause. Relative clauses modify a noun. You use a relative clause to add information to a sentence without beginning a new one.

You can begin a relative clause with who for people, which for things or that for either people or things.

In spoken English you usually use that, rather than which or who.
You put the relative clause immediately after the noun it talks about.

You can put the relative clause after the subject or the object of the sentence. We can't omit the relative pronoun (that, who, which).

A subject relative clause gives information about the subject of the clause and comes after the subject of the sentence.

For example:

The first tip that is listed is "Don't be a copycat candidate."

Which tip? The tip that is listed. The clause that is listed immediately follows tip - the noun it describes.

An object relative clause describes the object of the clause and comes after the object of the sentence.

For example:

We can't underestimate peers who are a source of career opportunities.

Which peers? The peers who are a source of career opportunities.

A defining relative clause specifies which noun you are talking about:

- People who rely too much on searching on the Internet are missing opportunities.
- (If you don't include 'who rely too much on searching on the internet', we don't know which people you are talking about).

A non-defining relative clause provides extra, non-essential information about something. This information is not necessary for us to understand the sentence.

- We can't underestimate peers, who are a source of career opportunities.
- (We know peers are, so 'who are a source of career opportunities' is extra information).

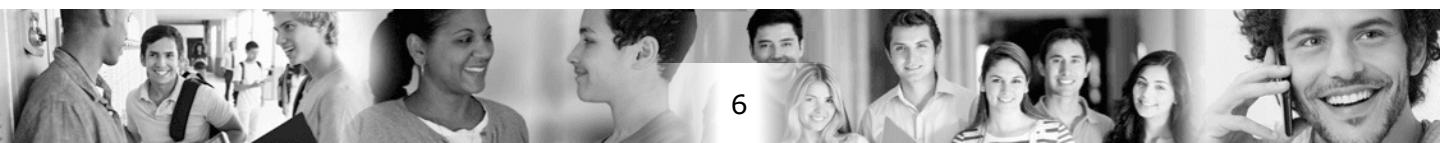

Learning Points

Example	Clause	Relative connector	Type of Relative Clause
The first tip that is listed is "Don't be a copycat candidate."	that is listed	that	subject
"Take into consideration your personal experiences and career goals which can be used to position yourself as a unique candidate."	which can be used to position yourself as a unique candidate	which	subject
We can't underestimate peers who are a source of career opportunities.	who are a source of career opportunities	who	subject

Examples:

- Someone gave a me list of job search tips which I'm not sure I completely understand.
- "Take into consideration your personal experiences and career goals which can be used to position yourself as a unique candidate."
- Employers who can see what we post on Twitter and Facebook might get a bad impression.
- People who rely too much on searching on the Internet are missing opportunities.
- We can't underestimate peers, who are a source of career opportunities.

Learning Points

Tag Questions with positive tags

You use tag questions to ask for clarification and confirmation.

A question tag is a short question that is added at the end of a statement.

They are mostly used in spoken English when you want to:

- confirm whether something is true or not true, or
- to prompt a reply from the person we are speaking to.

A negative statement is followed by an affirmative question tag.
Use this when you think the other person will agree by saying 'no'.

If the main verb is to be or a modal verb, the tag will be the same.

For all other main verbs, use the tag do/does or did/didn't. Look at the examples in the chart.

Main Verb	Tag
He isn't/wasn't	is/was he?
You aren't	are you?
He can't	can he?
We couldn't	could we?
You won't	will you?
She doesn't have	does she?
You don't have	do you?
He didn't like	did he?

Examples:

- It can't hurt for me to see what types of jobs are out there, can it?
- I don't have to do all of them, do I?
- I shouldn't do what everyone else does, should I?
- We don't want them to see something embarrassing, do we?
- You're not going to skip lunch, are you?

